Defending Jacob by William Landay Tuesday January 14 at 7 pm

Andy Barber, respected father & successful district attorney, is blindsided when his 14-year old son is charged with the murder of a fellow student. Jacob insists he is innocent. Andy believes him - a father must, right? - but as the trial progresses, he learns how little he really knows his son.

Snow Falling On Cedars by David Guterson Tuesday February 11 at 7 pm

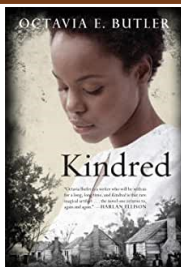

1954: On isolated San Pedro Island, Japanese American fisherman Kabuo Miyamoto is arrested for the murder of (white) fisherman Carl Heine. Interspersed with the trial, Guterson reveals how Carl's mother cheated Kabuo's father while he was interned, and why newspaper editor Ishmael withholds crucial evidence.

Light Between Oceans by M. L. Stedman Tuesday March 10 at 7 pm

Tom and his young bride Isabel move to an isolated Australia lighthouse home where, in 1926, the supply boat comes once a season. After she suffers miscarriages and a stillbirth, an infant washes up on their shore in a boat, with a dead man. Isabel convinces Tom to let her keep baby Lucy, her "gift from God".

Kindred by Octavia Butler Tuesday April 14 at 7 pm

Dana, a modern Black woman, is celebrating her 26th birthday with her white husband when she gets dizzy and is abruptly transported to 1800s Maryland. During repeated trips back in time, Dana's life is entangled with a slaveholding family and her own ancestors. WARNING: Graphic violence against slaves.
