What's Blocking Your Search?

Do you know what's blocking your search and keeping you from landing that job you really want? Whether you are just starting out on your search, or have been struggling for seemingly endless months, one of your most important tasks is to diagnose what you need to do to succeed in your search. In this unique workshop, John Hadley will use his proprietary Career Search Assessment survey and the ChangeGrid to help you uncover what's blocking your search, positioning you to take action to land the job and pay you deserve. At the start of the session, you will complete your own personal ChangeGrid on-site. John will then show you how to interpret it to identify the challenges you face, and strategies for dealing with them. This is going to be a unique opportunity to position yourself to take the RIGHT actions to move your search forward, so don't miss out!

John Hadley helps job seekers frustrated with their search. He also works with professionals struggling to become and be seen as influential leaders. After graduating from Stanford University, John worked in the financial services industry for 25 years, in roles ranging from Product Manager to Chief Actuary. Thirteen years ago he opened his Career Search Counseling practice, and has helped hundreds land the job and pay they deserve.

John offers a FREE Career Tips Email newsletter to 9,500 subscribers, each month bringing valuable advice on marketing yourself for a career search, and for accelerating your career.
